Dear Mr. Webster;

Right now there is a good chance that someone in your department may be photocopying valuable and confidential information that is highly classified.

Do you want to enhance the security of these documents?

There is now a new effective line of products that will provide your documents with maximum protection against unwanted duplication, alteration, or facsimile transmission. These unique photocopy paper products are designed for your photocopier and facsimile machine. These products are called the Nocopi Document Security System. It is a family of 5 papers, one of which is right for your needs. The Nocopi Document Security papers are available to Federal Agencies through our Gould Hi-Tech subsidiary.

It is our understanding that a Special Item Number from General Services Administration will be issued shortly for the Nocopi papers.

For further details about the Nocopi Document Security System, call or write to the undersigned at the above location.

Sincerely;

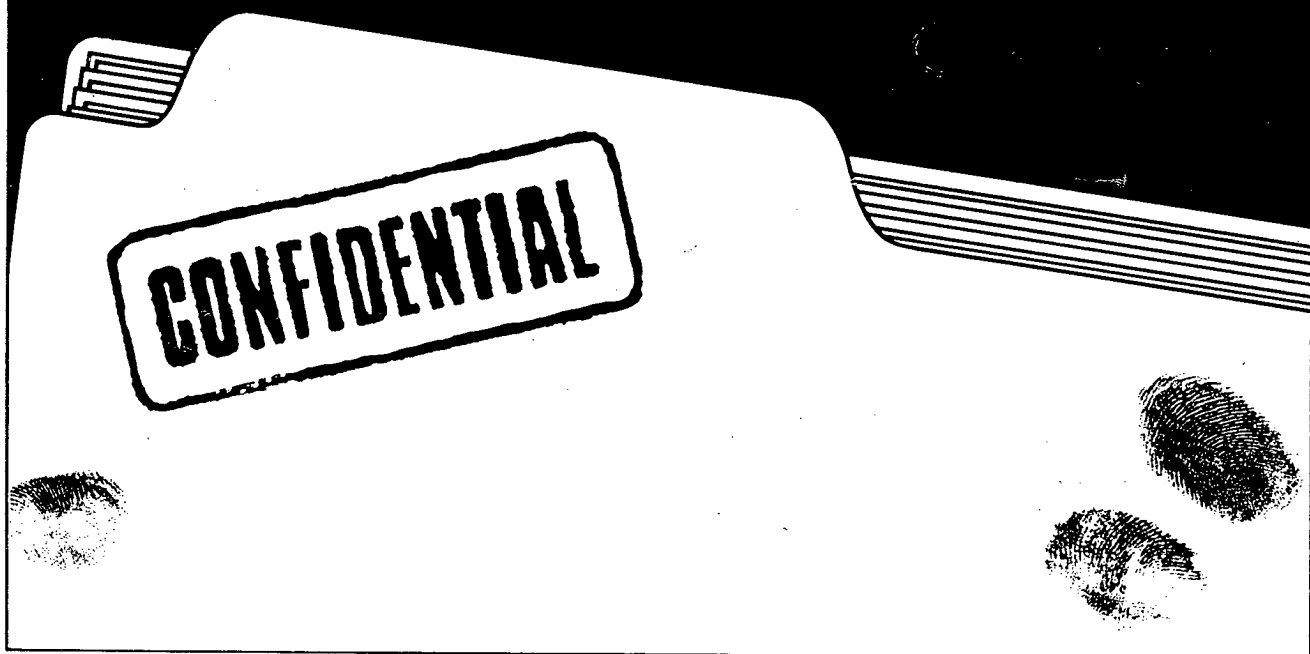

Arthur S. Bracco

WOULD YOU KNOW IF ANYONE WAS PHOTOCOPYING YOUR CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION?

COULD YOU STOP THEM IF THEY WERE?

Right now there is a good chance that someone in your office may be photocopying the valuable, confidential information which is at the very heart of your business. And they're walking off with it...right through the front door.

Now you can do something about it by using the Nocopi™ Security System. Nocopi is a system made up of three unique papers which can be matched to compatible photocopiers used in your office. Together they can provide your documents with maximum protection against unwanted alteration or duplication. It's an effective way to discourage information piracy.

You can now protect all your confidential documents: letters, strategic plans, financial projections, legal files, R&D drawings, medical records, credit reports, personnel and salary files, blueprints, marketing plans, purchase orders, client lists, price lists, computer printouts and more, simply by using one of the Nocopi Security System Papers.

The same unique properties that make Nocopi difficult to photocopy also inhibit transmission by telecopier. As well, Nocopi's distinctive burgundy color helps identify any unauthorized person who has confidential documents in their possession.

Nocopi, a security system for the protection of valuable information.
